

The Humanities and Sciences Department has successfully organized a Guest Lecture on “FE guidance session for the placements” held on, 25th Feb. 2022. The lecture was delivered by Ms. Sheetal Bhatia (T & P head at Atharva College Of Engineering).

The Speaker constructively placed the idea of placement preparation that will play a pivotal role in final placements. She emphasized on quantitative aptitude, logical reasoning, and verbal ability that ensure the Soft skill training for the students.

She started with providing the information regarding various companies visiting the college for individual branches and their annual packages. She described how students of first year can start preparing themselves at this level and coping up with the developing technical world and competitions.

She explained about the placement team’s role under her guidance to organize job description sessions, mock discussions, mock interviews.

Her expertise over these information, made the session very insightful and interactive.

Students participated in the lecture enthusiastically and got the opportunity to ask queries and shared their feedback. In total 345 students participated in the session.
